

“KNOWLEDGE IS IN EVERY COUNTRY THE SUREST BASIS OF PUBLIC HAPPINESS.”

George Washington

HAPPY WASHINGTON’S BIRTHDAY FROM THE LEWIS CENTER FOR EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH!

As we celebrate George Washington’s birth, the words expressed above by the father of our country are just as relevant today as they were at the dawn of the American experience. For 25 years, the Lewis Center for Educational Research has explored new frontiers in education while forging its own educational revolution. Whether it’s expanding the K-16 Bridge Program and its total online curriculum tool to more students and teachers, helping students experience NASA missions first-hand to fire students’ imaginations about math and science, or harnessing technological breakthroughs to provide enriched educational experiences, the Lewis Center continues its quest to continuously improve the way students learn. We believe President Washington would enthusiastically approve of how we help students master the knowledge they will need to thrive in their school careers, and ultimately lead happy and successful lives.
